Educational Concepts of the Game

Food

Children can learn how to prepare various dishes by playing this game. They will be able to picture various results and consequences when actually cooking, such as the fact that food burns if cooked too long, and steam rises when water boils.

In the "Let's Make Breakfast!" and "Let's Bake a Cake!" screens, children can perform more intricate actions such as serving food onto plates and adding toppings.

Creativity

The creativity of children is fostered by their unlimited curiosity, which compels them to contemplate which tools to use with which ingredients to make various dishes. In addition, children can experiment with various ways of setting the table, arranging the room, serving food, adding toppings and more. There's no need to worry if they make mistakes. Let them try again as many times as they want.

Observation

"How do I use this tool?" "What will happen if I fry this?" "What will happen if I boil this?" Through experimentation, children can observe various things such as how to use tools, make food and clean up.
